

Aaron Skonnard

*Co-founder/
Chief Executive Officer*

Aaron Skonnard is the Chief Executive Officer of Pluralsight, Inc. (NASDAQ: PS), the leading technology workforce development company that helps companies and people around the world transform with technology. Aaron co-founded Pluralsight in 2004 and has since grown the company to more than 1,700 employees with four offices in three countries.

Aaron's passion for technology began when his father bought him an Apple Macintosh and one of the first Compaq PCs. His father taught him about the impact and possibilities of technology from an early age, which is why Pluralsight's mission—to democratize technology skills—is so close to him.

Through his leadership, the company has flourished and made its public market debut on May 17, 2018. Since 2013, Pluralsight has acquired ten companies to widen the scope of its library, add new features to the platform and diversify into a multi-product and strategic skills consulting company. Aaron also led Pluralsight through three rounds of funding as a private company, including a $135 million Series B round in August 2014.

He feels strongly the key to a healthy business is establishing a strong culture and building a team that believes in its core values. In 2020, Pluralsight landed on the Fortune 100 Best Companies to Work For list and was also recognized by Great Place to Work® on its Best Workplaces for Women and Best Workplaces in Technology lists.

Prior to founding Pluralsight, Aaron earned his degree in computer science at Brigham Young University. After college, he worked at 3M, Intel and Axiom Technologies, and also as a professional instructor at DevelopMentor, where he became passionate about teaching technology.

Aaron is a thought-leader in the industry, speaking at events around the world. He is a founding board member of Silicon Slopes, the nonprofit that empowers Utah's startup and tech community to learn, connect, and serve in an effort to make entrepreneurship and opportunity in Silicon Slopes open and accessible to all. As a result of his efforts in the business world and community, Aaron was inducted into the Utah Technology Council Hall of Fame in 2017. Other accolades include the 2015 Utah CEO of the Year from StartSLC, 2016 CEO of the Year from Utah Business, and MountainWest Capital's 2016 Entrepreneur of the Year.

Believing that technology has the power to create freedom, equality and opportunity around the globe, Aaron launched Pluralsight One in 2017. Pluralsight One is the company's commitment to serving a larger purpose by equipping nonprofits with the technology skills they need to drive significant, lasting social impact and in turn equipping those they support with access to high quality learning resources and the technology skills to chart their own futures and strengthen their communities.
